

Vaccine Education Project

Have you ever asked yourself these questions?

“Should I get vaccinated for pneumonia, flu, or shingles?”

“How effective are vaccines at preventing these diseases?”

If these questions are familiar, the Vaccine Education Project (VEP) may be right for you!

The VEP is an educational program and research study about immunizations of pneumonia, flu, and shingles for adults 50 years of age and older. Participants will learn about the diseases being prevented, who should get vaccinated, and how to access vaccination from your pharmacist or primary care provider.

Participants will NOT be vaccinated as a part of this project.

There is no charge to participate. VEP Workshop Dates:

Tuesday October 10, 2017 12:30-2:30pm

Thursday October 12, 2017 12:30-2:30pm

Lunch Provided – Advanced Registration Required

For more information contact: Fatima Jackson
(215) 848-7722 ex 305 or e-mail: FJackson@centerinthepark.org

All inquiries and program participation information are confidential.

The Vaccine Education Project is a collaboration between Rutgers University, Center in the Park, & Thomas Jefferson University and is funded by Merck & Co., Inc.

RUTGERS

Version 1.0, Date 08.24.2017

